

The British
Psychological Society
History of Psychology Centre

Stories of Psychology

War and Its Legacy

Wednesday 8 October 2014
Chancellor's Hall, Senate House, University of London

PROGRAMME

- 10.30 am Registration opens (light refreshments will be served)
- 11.15 am Opening remarks - Dr Alan Collins (University of Lancaster)
- 11.25 am Professor Jamie Hacker Hughes (Anglia Ruskin University)
From Myers to the MOD: 99 Years of British Military Psychology
- 12.10 pm Professor Edgar Jones (Institute of Psychiatry)
Shell Shock: The First World War and the Origins of Psychological Medicine
- 12.55 pm Brief address - Dr Richard Espley (Research Librarian, Senate House Library)
- 1.00 pm Lunch
- 2.00 pm Andrea von Hohenthal (University of Freiburg)
Presentation of initial doctoral research findings on the development of psychology in Britain and Germany during the Great War
- 2.20 pm Professor Sonu Shamdasani (University College London)
C.G. Jung, 1914-1918: From the Great War to the War Within
- 3.05 pm Professor Michael Roper (University of Essex) Growing Up in the Aftermath: Childhood and Family Relationships Between the Wars
- 3.50 pm Closing remarks - Dr Alan Collins

An exhibition stand 'Shelving trauma: Great War psychology in Senate House Library' will be open during registration and at the lunch interval.