7. Are there any factors that would make it difficult for you to attend meetings?

Number of respondents: 12

Responses
Part time working hours but if meetings are alternated mornings/afternoons I should be able to attend at least one!
Location if in person could be a barrier, depending on clinical demands and time required to be away from those. Clinical activity generally, but with enough advance notice planning could be made around this
Travel Part-time working hours
Just the usual!
Caseload Busy, split post
If in person meetings - depending on location, travel time may be an issue. If full days this would be less of an issue.
Competing demands with clinical work Time to travel if meeting in person
Would like to see more focus on partnership with people outwith NHS, especially at the moment when we're forming community led partnerships with NHS and new service delivery models. Lots to learn from each other and opportunities to make a difference.
Time
The usual systemic pressures of working practices
Proximity to train station makes attendance much easier
Work demands Clinic times

Inpatient work Developments in therapeutic interventions for OA Stress and distress updates
Personality disorders in older people
Specialist therapy within an OA context, e.g. CFT/ACT/Schema for OA. Trauma within OA Working within highly medical model contexts effectively Learning about good practice and innovative models of service delivery in other areas Advocating for OA services/addressing service inequities/inequality issues
Neuropsychological assessment Delirium
Increasing access to psychological therapies for older people - what is being done across different areas and progress made. Psychologists working in acute care/hospital liaison teams.
Working in an inpatient setting with older adults (functional and organic) neuropsychological testing in older adults- updates, new tests, remote testing etc.
ACT for older people In-patient provision (service development) Complex trauma in older people
Trauma Adapting clinical interventions/approaches for an older adult population Improving psychologically informed practice within an MDT
Community Recovery Transformation PSPs Sharing psychological expertise more widely
I can see the merit of Health board area themed days but for smaller health boards this could be difficult. The upcoming membership changes in wider BPS, and previous issues, has affected overall BPS as well as FPOP membership.
Use of Cognitive analytic therapy with older people Compassion-focused therapy with older people Engaging older adults from minority ethnic groups in services
