

Dr Kimberley Hill

Dr Kimberley Hill is an Associate Professor and Deputy Psychology Lead at The University of Northampton. Kimberley's main area of research is in Social, Cognitive and Health Psychology and she uses quantitative, qualitative and mixed methods to understand health promotion and health risk prevention in context. Kimberley's most recent published and funded projects have focused on preventing sexual violence in new campus spaces and understanding alcohol misuse determinants in alcogenic environments.

Kimberley has been a Committee Member for the Social Psychology Section since 2015. She has also held positions on the Division of Health Psychology, the European Society for Prevention Research and The BPS Psychologist and Digest Editorial Advisory Committee. As a National STEM Ambassador and member of WISE, Kimberley is dedicated for improving access into Science.

You can follow Kimberley on Twitter or learn more about her here.